Life is what we make
And know how what we waste
What's still not understood
We'll be gone one day,
Somewhere far away
Or in the ground for good

Too much, too much we use it all
Waiting for days like we should live so long
Get up and rush and get it done
We'd own the world
We'd own the world

All the weight that's always on me
Falls away when you're around
All the weight that's always on me
Still somehow I get carried away
I get carried away with you

Would it be so strange
To wake up one day,
And it was all a dream
Every single place
But the time and space
Constructed in your sleep

We love, we love the here and now
We take, and we take until everything runs out
We are, we are the end of all
We'll make it last, I'll make it last
If I'm with you because

All the weight that's always on me
Falls away when you're around
All the weight that's always on me leaves somehow
Like all the pain and all my worries,
Push to the side when you're around
All the weight that's always on me
Still somehow I get carried away
I get carried away with you
I get carried away
I get carried away with you

Oh, I get carried away

All the weight, the hurt, the pain

When I'm with you

It all just falls away

The feels, the needs, the ache

It falls away

When I'm alone with you

When I'm alone with you

When I'm alone with you
