travelling through spirals of time seeing things change burning minutes as we walk pushing into the edge

once we were young and fresh now we're old and rotten so we better take this chance before we're all broken returning to our place to dream our feelings fade to grey out illusions turn to stone after all we said

face to face to the mirror face to face our life's are too frail somebody screams, where have you gone?

i know we can't turn back time
'cause we're a disease somebody screams, where are you?

would you ever think of us
once this is over?
once this is over?
