We're the silent half untruths we have sharp pebbles in the boots we don't like happy endings we're dreams splattered on a toilet seat we remember to forget the defeat we're millions of wisdom teeth

'cause we're the ones who are too sober to... we're the ones who are too sober to love we're the child who has nothing pure we have cheap liquors we have the cure we're the umpteenth rainy day we're dumb soldiers in a diet-nam who need to tape their plastic ideals we're the inner conflict stars and we are goin' to draw the line that says we've had enough we're barely more than strangers fucking each other in more ways and then if I could tell you what's on my mind...

I wish I could climb a tree to the very top until there were nothin' between me and the half untruths
between...me and love

...in spring we're pale
...in summer we're barefoot
...in fall we're poets
...in winter we're safe
