I am who I've always been, and I'll be more, nothing can destroy me, nothing can stop me. 'cause every steps I take, every new side I got to know, shed the light to the unknown, like dawn to the night. The mosaic like details blaze a trail into the thick, forming a sharp contrast, getting experience. But the road, you are coming from, remains an open book, word by word, year by year, together complex series. Without interruption, it draws a complete stature, who fights against his past, spits himself in the eye. A strange power motivates me and continuously whispers, there's no stop sign, without cease, endeavor to the unknown. Be more and more, expand yourself, build your view of life and if you see indifference, that should give you pride! I am who I've always been, and I'll be more, nothing can destroy me, nothing can stop me. To stop means being deadÂ...
