I'm not just another dancing monkey
These words that I write
And these scars that I sing
Mean everything to me

At home in the circus
My life's a forever change
Un-blind in the spotlight
A dichotomy on display

I feel the stares of strangers
Those who have been trained, indoctrinated
They look on in their simbiotic haze of disbelief and archaic wonderment
Am I that peculiar and unique that they think I'm a freak
I pay them nevermind

My words will stain your heart
My voice can change the world
My dreams shall leave you open, open and free
I'm not just another dancing monkey
