I went to Heavens gate,
drown in tears and torn by hate.
But before my knocks could reach the sky
I heard the voice of my fate:
"What desire is thy?"

I went to Heavens gate,
just to ask if I'm too late.
And here is what it said:

You could do everything, everything
to prove your love to her.
Just describe anything, anything
that you feel inside yourself
But remember that time is your enemy
and don't flee agony

I only fear hurting her,
"but how if you stay with her?"
I fear destroying her hopes.
Please show me the ropes!
How to avoid harming her heart?
"Just don't let it drift apart."

You could do everything, everything
to prove your love to her.
Just describe anything, anything
that you feel inside yourself
But remember that time is your enemy
and don't flee agony

"What would you do if she came here for you?"
"I don't know", I answered.
"So what would you do if she was here?"
Lowering my head I replied whispering
"I really don't know."

'cause I'd do everything, everything
just to tell her I love her.
I'd do everything, everything to have her by my side.
But my biggest fault is that

I don't know exactly what.
I think that I only flee agony.
