Did your lover leave you stranded
Did your heart endure the truth
Will you fight to find the healing
Or will time heal all your wounds

Do you drown in your desire
For a time you used to know
Memories cant touch you
They are just a picture show

Don't let go, oh honey can't you see
Every thing's a circle in itself
All as it should be

Have you stood inside a nightmare
Did it slap you in the face
Were you left to lose control
Did you ever find a way

Was it somebody that loved you
Or a face you've never seen
So final, so quick
Are the hands of destiny

Don't let go, honey can't you see
Every thing's a circle in itself
All as it should be

You philosophize each second
Then you live as if you're dead
Always aching for the beauty
Of the visions in your head

Was it something that you wanted
Only never had the guts
Now you stand ashamed
And regret your giving up

Where would you be, if you had tried
If you had given all you could
To the passion of your life

There is someone out there
Watching every step you take today
Every struggle, all confusion
Endless questions in your head

But he's got you where he wants you
There are reasons we can't see
We all stand where we belong
Every moment meant to be

So don't let go, honey can't you see
Every thing's a circle in itself
All as it should be, all as it should be

All as it should be, all as it should be
All as it should be, all as it should be
All as it should be, all as it should be
