(General Johnson/Ronald Dunbar/Greg Perry)

(she give you all her love) hey (she never get enough of your love) hey, hey, ooh
you better butter up your buttercup you better give her love she can't get enough

[chorus:]
a woman can't live by bread alone (butter her with love)
a woman can't live by bread alone (butter her with love)

men try to satisfy a woman with gifts and pretty flowers but all the things that money can buy won't make her for her lonely hours without love, her life is there what she needs is your loving care

[chorus]
wrapped in your loving arms don't you know it means more to her than being covered with diamonds and pearls or wrapped up with expensive furs without love and tenderness, she's not satisfied, she'd better exit

[repeat chorus]
(she give you all her love) hey
(she never get enough of your love)
hey, hey, ooh
you better butter up your buttercup
you better give her love she can't get enough hey

[interlude]

I said a woman can't live by bread alone (butter her with love)
oh, a woman can't live by bread alone (butter her with love)
a woman can't live by bread alone (butter her with love)
no, no, woman can't live by bread alone
