for you, darling, I'll wear this smile I will walk that long extra mile and I'll pretend we're tight as friends ass over tits, baby, I'll bend but it's an act behind your back, it's just a means to an end I ain't saying nothing to your face I tell you, darling, mum's the word ain't saying nothing lest you get hurt and I'll falsify my loyalty conduct the quietest mutiny it won't be easy because you're a prick, I hate your fucking guts I'll show up everyday, for sure so on the first I'll be secure make sure my thoughts are curbed because this could be so much worse and I will try to look you in the eyes when I talk without grabbing your head to rip it off inside this shirt and tie my pride and debt collide
