Almost home, lay your head down
It's a grateful road like you showed me
There is comfort in what you know
But cannot see almost home just like you told me

This isn't the end, there's so much left Beyond the edge of brokenness
Darling we are all falling
And the ground can hold both sinner and saint
When you wanna wait, when you want, when you wanna
wait
The moment you break is the dawn of grace

Still your closed in scarlet stains
You try to wash them clean but it never fades
And I know you feel like you can barely walk
The savage worms don't spare the flower
This will take, this will take more than your own strength

But this isn't the end, a second chance rests
Beyond the edge of brokenness
Even though we're all falling Love knows both sinner and saint
When you wanna wait, when you want, when you wanna
wait
The moment you break is the dawn of grace

This isn't the end, it's only the edge of courage, this isn't the end
This isn't the end, there's so much left beyond the edge of brokenness Hang onto the only hope of the young and old, the sinner and saint Hang onto grace and never run, never run away, yeah
The moment you break is the dawn, the moment you break is the dawn of grace
Almost home, lay your head down
