If these walls could talk,
Would they tell you all,
The things I've said while you were fast asleep,
Lying next to me.

Would they play like a memory,
Every night you stay up waiting,
Just to fall asleep,
Lying next to me.

And it would start with a whisper in the dark,
Shapes and shadows fall apart,
Anything just to break this,
But I can't bring myself to say it.

Now I'm wide awake,
And my eyes are open watching,
As you fade away,
Do you know that I'd give anything to be,
The only one,
The only one,
The only one you're dreaming of.

How do I stop these thought from racing around,
A million miles in all directions,
How do I make my heart stop beating,
Long enough to hit the ground,
And when the sunlight hits your face,
Hot enough, I watch you wake up from the dream,
Lying next to me,
When you close your eyes I hope your listening.

Now I'm wide awake,
And my eyes are open watching,
As you fade away,
Do you know that I'd give anything to be,
The only one,
The only one,
The only one you're dreaming of.

These walls come down,
We'll burn them to the ground,

We'll spread the ashes out,
And listen to the sound,
And I'll stare into the flames,
Whispering your name,
Remembering the day,
Remembering the day,
I saw you for the first time,
O-o-o-o-Oh

If these walls could talk,
Would they tell you all,
The things I've said while you were fast asleep,
Lying next to me.

But, Now I'm wide awake,
And my eyes are open watching,
As you fade away,
Do you know that I'd give anything to be,
The only one,
The only one,
The only one you're,
Now I'm wide awake,
And my eyes are open watching,
As you fade away,
Do you know that I'd give anything to be,
The only one,
The only one,
The only one you're dreaming of.

O-ooo-oh
No-o-ooo-o-oh,
The only one,
The only one,
The only one you're dreaming of.

O-ooo-oh
No-o-ooo-o-oh,
The only one you're dreaming of,
The only one,
The only one,
The only one you're dreaming of.
