I remember the day we met
Like a thunderbolt out of the blue
You kinda liked the way I came across
But it always meant more to me than it meant to you

Recalling a daydream I had as a child
A half hidden memory from a more innocent time

Your love is never wasted
If your heart is true
All that you're giving
Will always come back to you
In the strangest of ways
On your darkest of days
All that you're giving out
Will surely be coming back to you

So no need to be worrying
No need to count the cost
No separating the inside from the outside world
No finding No loss

I'm remembering something, so distant so fine
Ancient, eternal and still ahead of it's time

Your love is never wasted
If that love is true
All that you're giving
Will always come back to you
In the strangest of ways
In your darkest of days
All that you're giving out
Will surely be coming back to you

So love with abandon
Without judgement. without fear
With a confidence in tomorrow
Love with a grin and a tear

Not always reflected, not always fulfilled
Love's not out to get you but wants you to build

Your love is never wasted
If that love is true
All that you're giving
Will always come back to you
In the sweetest of ways
On your brightest of days
All that you're giving out
Will surely be coming back to you
Surely be coming back to you
