Before we steam and send, steady to the sun.
A simple tale of woe, your hearts will be undone.
A love song to everyone I know, arms wide open, here
we go.

She weaves a trail of petals through the embryonic ice,
Her hair is warm to the touch, her flowers twice as nice.
And if he stands on the moon he can barely catch her eyes,
Always open to the sky.

And so we land only to find we never left the ground,
Please leave the walls and the floors exactly as you found.
A love song to everyone I know, arms wide open, here
we go.
Here we go.
Here we go.
Here we go.
