(R. Rice)

technology is worth the prices that we pay and we might lose a species or two along the way if we can't eat em ride em pet em use em or hunt them down for sport there ain't no cause to keep them there's an awful lot of wood out there that no one ever sees yeah we can save the forest but do we need so many trees coz we can cut em haul em sell em n make some greenbacks while the environmentalists are sleeping and when it's all gone
don't worry we can find another planet strong industry keeps the economy running well and naturally there are certain waste products expelled if we can't bury it fry it hide it deny it or shoot it into space we could always dump it in the ocean

don't worry we can find another planet it's a damn good thing that our rockets can make it to the moon coz the way this worm is turning we're gonna need those suckers soon but first we need bombers warheads missiles subs and satellites i think we just ran out of money
and when it's all gone
don't worry we can find another planet
when it's all gone
it's all gone
