So it seems that I spent the last couple years screaming at a thick brick wall I have so many things to say but no one's listening at all I don't pretend to have all the answers, but I react when something's wrong
Instead of mindlessly engaging in this corporate sing-along

Sing along to the sound of factories mass-producing your deceit
While you tacitly approve shaking your head to the beat
As you support their unfair labor, become a billboard for their greed
The corporate elite has succeeded in turning your wants into needs

Sing along

Sing along with the advertising jingle written for your kids
Sing along with the diamonds that say "I love you" better than you ever did Sing along with the single mother who will never get a raise Sing along with the girl in the sweatshop making 50 cents a day

Sing along
