To hesitate, to reel and stutter in a free fall to eat your grapes
and slow the runner you just need calm Don't let me down I'm already down like a rubber band pulled between two hands in a slow defiance of when it might break then someone laughs, all left feet and charging rhinos... unfunny but i know no one here needs your kind of redemption you came in waves and tired of all this celebration you milked the tree, fed the starfish and said all is calm You must get down I'm already down with the whole event held within your head like old valentines,

just when do you start to fake a love for jazz and blue green oranges...
It's so hieronymus I know no one here needs your kind of redemption
How shallow ponds with the growth of decades carry on or I'll never know on the whole, I can dig the world's offerings and with the yes parade on hold it did not lesson me when it was said to me with the elegance of daybreak that wherever you go take your pride, wherever you go, there you are that was the birthplace of almost everything sold,
poetic and stoned...
