No Promises

Iva Davies / Robert Kretschmer

a winter palace from the arabian nights white waves on an ocean gems from a golden age
life in your new world
turning round and round making some sense
where there's no sense at all
no promises
but if you should fall stars die in the silence of arabian nights
wind washes the seasons in these days of a golden age
life in your new world
but if you should fall
I could give you more than just the shape of things break every word begin it all again your name on a white sheet pure lace shot with passion but as love lies bleeding in your hands heaven sends you

of arabian nights
no white waves on an ocean no gems from a golden age
so make some sense

I give you
no promises
no promises
but if you should fall
you fall
no promises
no promises
you fall
as it turns round and round
no promises
