

Idy

"I'm Supposed To Love You"

Visit "I'm Supposed To Love You" on MotoLyrics.com

Crumple up these dirty leaves.
I'm getting too high to breathe.
And, as I'm clutching lines in the street,
she just keeps text messaging me.
You don't even know what it means,
just how much that you mean to me.

And there is sunlight behind my eyelids; it comes in the shape of your sultry silhouette. And, there are diamonds gouging my eyelids, my dreams turned jagged the day that you entered them.

As I watched my whole life careen
at a high speed into a tree, cartilage and bones are bruising
as I'm bleeding out my sanity.
But dear, I know I'd gladly bleed everything that I've got to bleed
if it keeps you next to me,
you don't even know what you mean.

And, there is sunlight behind my eyelids; it turns in the shape of your sultry silhouette. And, there are diamonds gouging my eyelids, my dreams turned
jagged the day that you entered them.

I never meant to,
it just happened.
I was supposed to love you.

And, there is sunlight behind my eyelids; it turns in the shape of your sultry silhouette. And, there is sunlight behind my eyelids; it comes in the shape of your sexy silhouette.

Visit Idy page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.