

If Hope Dies "Roddy Piper's Magic Sunglasses" wake up from the slumber that you've been forced into climb out from the depths of sleep to the waking world asleep with your eyes wide open we stumble from place to place lulled into compliance from the whispers in our ears well it's time to rise up from our beds we've sensed that something's wrong but with eyes closed tight it's hard to see just what it is that sedates us and keeps us from being free we've been programmed to fall into place

the rank and file members of a catatonic state
washed away
and drowning
in this
mainstream

feed the need
that burns inside you
this desire
cannot be satisfied

this consumption consumes
our very being
you

once we finally wake up we will see that the emperor has no clothes or skin upon his face

demolish all the signs that hang over our heads burn down everything

that bears their messages end your consumption

of shallow offerings
shake off the effects of this sleep

wake up
