Sweet little chaste woman
Why are you holding your breath in an ocean?

Where the abyss is infinitely deep
Skiing mountains, dangerously steep
Collecting all the dainty roses
Envisioning the one who proposes

I pray your garden's always filled with seeds
That it's not bothered by the stem of the weed

You keep your jewels in a safe
And only one set of keys
Careful to only bestow
The one who gets on his knees

Don't believe in what is wrong
Keep your night light on
You're confusing lust for love
Learn it will be gone

Don't believe in what is wrong
Keep your eyes open
You thought love and lust were one
No, they're so different

Only love remains
Lust is all a game
Once you learn the truth
All will come to you

Chastity, I hope you're listening
The point I'm making is the one you're missing
I'm only telling you so that you don't have to Make the decisions that I once had to

I'm not a preacher who has practiced
I'm not a teacher yet you are still an apprentice
My only fault is that I see this view
You're not guilty, you're beyond your youth

If you're not prepared for this ride

I say you should close your eyes
These fields of no innocence
You couldn't bare this blackened side

Don't believe in what is wrong
Keep your night light on
You're confusing lust for love
Learn it will be gone

Don't believe in what is wrong
Keep your eyes open
You thought love and lust were one
No, they're so different

I only mean well, I only mean well
I promise, I won't steer you wrong
It's only a simple request
