In the morning I awoke
A man lay with me
I was entranced the night before by everything we did
The sky was pink
The sand was white
The ocean clear as glass
The palm trees danced by the breeze that the wind has

All of these days seem like a fantasy
I wish that I could bring us back again

Cause we laughed
And we talked
And we walked
And we kissed
And we danced
The nights away
And we swam
And we touched
And we lay on the sand
We belong in these holidays

I wish for those days again
Again
Again
And again

So many hours but there not enough for us to have
It seems as though we need a time machine to bring us back
The air is thumping with everything shouldn't fell Something tells me that it's written that this feelings real

All of these days seem like a fantasy
I wish that I could bring us back again

Cause we laughed
And we talked
And we walked
And we kissed

And we danced
The nights away
And we swam
And we touched
And we lay on the sand
We belong in these holidays

I wish for those days again
Again
Again
And again
