face down lying on the floor. lash out at me and i went two rounds with you. you always knew the score. i'm not keeping track anymore. cause i've waited long enough for this to work out. i realize now i'm through with you. i don't need you anymore. i left a note signed by the door. sincerely i. write one last time. jaw clenched, staring down the hall. i knew i had to just be through with you. but to your face i'll say. everything i wrote that day. and i'll gladly make it clear to you. i want us to never speak again. i wrote in pen "no lies". and just signed it with my eyes. i never though i'd follow through. we've been part of this for so long now. you always said you wanted more. and i swear to you. this time i found my way to set the score. one last time
