Will you give all you got to give, are you making it up a bit

Are you loosing your mind, loosing track of time

Hide yourself in a masquerade, falling into this escapade

Watch yourself dancing with the clowns

Did you think you would be up with the kings and the queens

Building castles of sand, it gets out of hand

You know there's no guarantee surviving anomalies

No one can breathe in the sea, ironically

No one is running the show, no one is letting you know

That you will end up alone, keep running and running and running and running

Are there places that you hide, that echo your innocence

Run away from the fire, you are burning up inside

Lost control of the truth and the lies, it is lonely where you go

I have been there, so I know the way

Back to the other side

Counteract and get physical, deaf to anything critical

I don't mean to be cynical but you're fading away

Everybody has disappeared, will the walls listen to your fears

There's no reflection here, ironically

No one is running the show, no one is letting you know

Are there places that you hide, that echo your innocence

Run away from the fire, you are burning up inside

Lost control of the truth and the lies, it is lonely where you go

I have been there, so I know the way

Back to the other side

No one is running the show, no one is letting you know
That you will end up alone, keep running and running and running and running

Are there places that you hide, that echo your innocence
Run away from the fire, you are burning up inside
Lost control of the truth and the lies, it is lonely where you go
I have been there, so I know the way
It is lonely where you go
I have been there, so I know the way
Back to the other side
