From light into dark I fall into fear into the unknown, the interlayer.

I set candle to burn, some light to my room in need of cleansing flame before I implode.

Oh - fear is all I reap.

Oh - is fear all I seek?

Gleam of subtle light in layers of my soul deep within the core, deeper than I know.

Lonely candle burns cast light to my room I stare it for a while before I implode.

Oh - fear is all I reap.

Oh - is fear all I seek?

Fear - the burden I hold in this slough of despond; will I descend?

Layer of man - layer of Judas - layer of Jesus.

Oh - fear is all I reap.

Oh - is fear all I seek?

Fear - the burden I hold in this slough of despond; will I ascend?
