Right when I need you most, don't you move
Keep your feet planted right where you stand
Right where I need you here, so much closer than before

It's finally over
No pretending, this is real

I should have never brought you here
I should have told you from the start to run
I should have never let you leave

You were the only one.

I should have never brought you here
I should have told you from the start to run
I should have never let you leave

You were the only one.

Cut off at arms length
Tell me I'm everything
Still it means nothing to you
The threat of letting go
This pain, an empty room
Is now all that I know

It's finally over
No pretending, this is real

I should have never brought you here
I should have told you from the start to run
I should have never let you leave

You are the only one.

I should have never brought you here
I Should have told you from the start to run
I should have never let you leave

You were the only one.

We kiss and we say goodnight
You walk away and I can't think twice
The thoughts run over and over

It's finally over
It's finally over

Right when I need you most, don't you move
Keep your feet planted right where you stand
Right where I need you here, so much closer than

It's finally over
It's finally over
It's finally over
