"Tuisto's Heart"

On the slope of a naked rock somewhere in Ska³/₄inawj³/₄ - the isles of Ska³/₄is - a blonde, fur-clad man immortalises his memory of Mannus, the oldest Ing. A large manlike shape is engraved in the rock; bloodred in colour, with a large phallus.
His hands are stretching toward the sky. Mannus, the son of

Tuisto, made sure his tribe survived the cold north together with his sons; Inguz, Herminuz and Istw³/₄. Tuisto's heart is warmed by the sight of his descendants; he knows the gods are not forgotten. Then - he reasons - there is hope after all, for the coming generations.
