Pieces, pieces
So many pieces to my life
Scattered all around
And some of them are gone
And I know that I can't ever
Put them back together again

Pieces, pieces
So many pieces to my life
jumbled and unformed
Who can really ever
Fit it all together again?

In a vision, like a daydream
That filters through your mind
I saw Jesus coming closer
Holding all my hopes combined
He spoke with great compassion
As He put one hand on me
And in His other hand He held
What I could never see

He said, "Pieces, pieces
I've got all the pieces to your life
A thousand tiny fragments
Of every single day
I can put them all together
And there'll never be another one who can"

He said, "Pieces, pieces
I've got all the pieces to your life
In my hands I hold the pieces
Of every single day
I can put them all together
So they'll never fall away
I can put them all together
And there'll never be another one who can"
