Hear you howlin'
Hear you howlin'
I can hear you crawl in the night
As the icecold wind comes and sweeps through the land
There's a whisper that grows to a scream
From the plains where life is a fraction of time
Comes the call of the crawl from the wild
Hear you howlin'
Hear you howlin'
I can hear you crawl in the night
As the frontier was made for steel towns and roads
They were scattered and thrown to the wind
And they gathered again in the deep of the woods
On a hungry hunt for revenge
Hear you howlin'
Hear you howlin'
I can hear you crawl in the night
The tribe that was wiped has now stamped up again
They'll come raging through cities and towns
When the hunger keeps burning in the hours through the night
Tell me then which side are you on?
Hear you howlin'
Hear you howlin'
I can hear you crawl in the night
The hunger of the wild world
Will never let you down
