Pray for sleep, pray for mercy
Pray to keep these wolves at bay
Pray that you will get through all of these prescient night and shadow days
Pray consume the tongue that lies
Pray that you make your escape

They caught a man and then created something special
Concertinaed and oblique
But they don't won't to make him better, just to break him some more
They will bring him to his knees

You'll never make it out alive if they always win
But do you have enough to fight and enough to kill?

The corpulent contradictors Bleed their money from those chasing ghosts down through their veins
But they don't want to make him forget who pulls the strings and paves the way

You'll never make it out alive if they always win
But do you have enough to fight and enough to kill?

You'll never make it out alive
You'll never make it out alive

But don't you want to be something more than this?

Pray for sleep, pray for mercy
Pray to keep these wolves at bay
nights and shadow days
Pray consume the tongue that lies
Pray that you make your escape

You'll never make it out alive if they always win
But do you have enough to fight and enough to kill?

But don't you want to be something more than this?
