Where is the hope
Where is the faith I thought I had?
It's so sad to say
But I lose a little more everyday
In one ear and out the other
I don't want to hear
What they have to say
I want to believe
That you stand strong
I want to believe in that song
The weight of knowing
That's a false hope
It's almost too much to take

Every minute of knowing
The truth adds another brick
To the wall I'm holding up for you
This could be the last brick
The one that breaks my back
I would still do anything for you
But I hope you know
What I have to do
It's not about me and you
It's about him
He'll see us through
