{But I think the most touching question is
Why did the world start?}

As they all felt the fire
They turned me into an outsider
I never heard from them again
So ironic when they called for a favor today

It's always easy to judge
But takes a lot to be specific
'Cause as you preach
You're opening the door to your egos past

There was a day when I could forget
I could forgive
But those days are gone
I see them fade

Filth
Filth in every new day
Filth runs in every new day

I learned to mute the anger
I never thought I would be there again
A moment, a dead end
I lost myself in here

Filth in every new day
Filth runs in every new day

I ran as I saw the end
Should I've joined the fight instead?
Hope you're listening
'Cause now times have changed

I take a look around
Say this moment's mine
Flee all the weak minds
Feel my missed hidden rage

Filth in every new day
Filth runs in every new day
