She's lookin' for a way out of this hole
She's out on her own with hungry mouths to feed
The precious little, she scratches on the dole
Is barely enough to cover all their needs

It hurts to see her once strong frame
Broken down by the constant blows of rejection
And now in place of the sweetest smile
She wears a frown of worry and dejection

Oh, it's a cold, cold world
That turns its back on you
When you're cryin' out for a little love
A little love and understandin'

People at the top looking down
They don't wanna know whose at the back of the line
People at the top looking down
Can't relate to our troubled minds

She's all caught up in these inner city blues
Out of control
(She's losin' her mind)
Her story's told but it's second hand news
To a world without care, they've heard it all before

Tryin' to do the best she can
But she's losin' faith in all that she believes in The light is fading and hope is dissipatin'
They say that they listen, Lord knows that they can't hear

It's a cold, cold world
That turns its back on you
Oh, when you're cryin' out for a little love
A little love and understandin'

People at the top looking down
Don't really wanna know whose at the back of the line
People at the top looking down
Tell you that they listen but they just can't hear
