for 1200 days and nights I remained sleepless only seemed to lie recounting in a dream that disappeared long ago as hours grew to days grew to months grew to years regretfully it appears that this dream was nothing but a foregone conclusion left to spend my waking days refuting the illusion put my mind to rest and strengthen my will display to me your fidelity and put my mind to rest transparent walls that enclose (fracture) separating us from the words of those words untold never cease to repeat nothing superior could I aspire to create
