I look at you, you look at me]
What do you see, a man or an interior being Five hundred years oppression
Lives on 'til this day
A fear of misunderstanding
Divides us in every way

Can't understand, the way we live
The way we talk
The way we think
We're all the same
Understandment destroys ignorance

Please understand, the way we live
Please understand, the way we talk
Please understand, the way we think
Please understand, we're all the same

30 years ago, one man had a dream
A dream that all man, they lived equally
One day they shot him down in the streets
One man who dreamed of peace

Understandment destroys ignorance

Fighting, blood fighting for rights and oppression lives to kill
And division forms the lines that separate by violent hands

Brought to your world against our will
On lands that others have sown
Born, bred, and raised as slaves
On our backs these lands have grown
