Caught up with feeling left behind
You question yourself every time and While these little angry thoughts build inside your head
You know you'll do your very best just to hold your breath
And as this time keeps passing on You're feeling like your not so strong Oh, will you do your very best to keep holding on

Don't you dare back down
You've come to close now
All this time you've spent could be saved right now
When you finally find a way
To fight your way out of this

Focus your feelings make them rhyme
Don't question yourself every time
And while those little angry thoughts build inside your head
You know you'll do your very best just to make them said
Cause it's your second time around
But will you settle down, don't settle down
You know you'll do your very best to keep holding on

So don't you dare
I know that you'll find your way around
So don't you dare back down cause your so close now
All this time you've spent could be saved right now when you finally find a way to fight your way outta this
