Everything's good when it's sunshine
You should see me in the rain
Everyone knows what it feels like
To have to start over again

But I can't start over again
Again, again, again

If some day I find me the answer
Move down south and marry a dancer
I could never let you go

And when he's holding you, you remember
The day I met you one cold December
I could never let you go
Oh, I could never let you go, go away

Everything I see around me
Reminds me of why you are numb
This bed is too deep to be empty
I'm swimming in oblivion

I'm drowning in oblivion
And on, and on, and on, and on
And on, and on, and on, and on

And if some day I find me the answer
Move down south and marry a dancer
I could never let you go

And when he's holding you, you remember
The day I met you one cold December
I could never let you go
Oh, I could never let you go
Could never let you go, yeah

Everything's good when it's sunshine
You should see me in the rain
Everyone knows what it feels like
To have to start over again

If by chance I find me the answer

Move down south and marry a dancer
I could never let you go

And when he's holding you, you remember
The day I met you one cold December
I could never let you go

And if some day I find me the answer
Move down south and marry a dancer
I could never let you go

Oh, I could never let you go
Could never let you go
Could never let you go
Could never let you go
Could never let you go
