"Gasoline Rainbow"

Rainbows made of gasoline and spears of light that Puncture carcinogenic clouds
A diatribe without a point
Another installation in the lonely crowd

Revolutionary words you spoke,
The passion that it would provoke that meant so much
You stiffened and you became stale,
You stagnated; you gradually fell out of touch

Now you tell me

You pretend like everything's alright
And you fall asleep tonight
But you're blind

The medicated comments and the cue cards that you're reading off response to me
Avert your as you see fit cause
Now you only see the things you want to see

A newly renovated conscience,
Now you won't think twice
Of the mistakes you made

Now you tell me....

You pretend like everything's alright
And you fall asleep tonight
But you're blind

Gracing the pages of all that he was (2X)

You pretend like everything's alright
But you're blind
