You used to fall into a dream where I would drop into the middle of something
Beautiful and bright but it wasn't real life
It wasn't my life
You can sit in the dark for just so long
Before all the ice and chill is gone
Something is stirring I can't explain it's the sound of your name

And I feel like the world is awakening
Something beyond me is happening
Like talking to God for the first time
What I saw in your eyes
Was the end of the darkest of nights
Waking Up to The Light

It's a whisper I need to hear
The kind of things I haven't heard in years
Like we'll be ok here in the sunlight
And should the sun slip away
We'll glow in the dark into a fire
A blanket of stars to crawl behind
Starting to see this is the light
I've been trying to find

And I feel like the world is awakening
Something beyond me is happening
Like talking to God for the first time
What I saw in your eyes
Was the end of the darkest of nights
Waking Up to The Light

Waking Up to The Light oh
You can sit in the dark for just so long
Before all the ice and chill is gone
Something is stirring I can't explain it's the sound of
your name

And I feel like the world is awakening
Something beyond me is happening
Like talking to God for the first time
What I saw in your eyes

And I feel like the world is awakening
Something beyond me is happening
Like talking to God for the first time
What I saw in your eyes
Was the end of the darkest of nights
Waking Up to The Light
