"Lean Into The Light"

We're not happy most of the time
We're not sad too often
We'll keep walking blind in the sun
While the rain's falling and then we'll Laugh 'bout the rage and never sigh
Laugh just as long as we're side by side
Laugh as we lean into the light
Laugh

We're no better off than we were
We're no worse for trying
We'll keep walking blind by the gates
Now the church bells chiming
But we'll laugh as the tears roll from our eyes
Laugh holding hands and our knuckles whine
Laugh as we lean into the light

Every morning, every good night
Every wrong word in our minds do make me say come right
Every welcome, every goodbye
Every dark room our bodies made
We're leaning towards the light
