I roll up my sleeves to feel the past
Force myself to remember
I thought that this bond was meant to last Believing we won't surrender

It turns out our passionate friendship's more like bargains
With customers trading heart for skin and the bodies that we're in Leftrightwrong
When I read between your lies it becomes a fortune
You're no longer in disguise, I'm forever gone

Cause it feels like me left is right
But this right just feels so wrong
And it feels like my world ain't here
Because I just don't belong

Because I just don't belong

Your precious word falls silently like an empty raindrop
Credibility looks like jewelry on a burgler's mug shot
It's not yet dangerous but an old illusion Your smile looks like your face got hurt by contaminated words

When I read between your lies it becomes a fortune
You're no longer in the skies, I'm forever gone

Refrain

When I read between your lies it becomes a fortune
Itchy You're no longer in the skies, I'm forever gone

Refrain (2x)
