Give me a shot glass of the finest import
And we can try to figure me out
We can't face down what we used to ignore
Figuring what this puzzle's about
Where did I go off the deep end with myself?
I don't think I'll ever get myself back
Too weak and too blind to really even tell
What it is I am seeming to have lacked

[Chorus:]

Let me open this heart for a minute
Give me this chance to be vulnerable
I was guilty of hatred, now I'm acquitted
But still I am losing all control
We can go around and you won't understand me
Or you can try to be my friend
In the end of the night I'm questioning my sanity
And if this circle will ever end

Maybe it was my father who laid his hands on me
Who made me to scared to open up
With every bruise and every little haunted memory
I felt afraid to feel real love
So I walk around like a nomad, a soul with no home
Lost inside this tremendous cage I'm in
Could you be the person to not make me feel alone?
Or just another taste of original sin?

Let me open this heart for a minute
Give me this chance to be vulnerable
I was guilty of hatred, now I'm acquitted
But still I am losing all control
We can go around and you won't understand me
Or you can try to be my friend
In the end of the night I'm questioning my sanity
And if this circle will ever end

Go on with your life if you please
And have everything thing you wanted
You can have some satisfaction from me
Well I really trust that you got it
Listening to my problems, every little thing

Every bitter taste that ate me bit by bit

Let me open this heart for a minute
Give me this chance to be vulnerable
I was guilty of hatred, now I'm acquitted
But still I am losing all control
We can go around and you won't understand me
Or you can try to be my friend
In the end of the night I'm questioning my sanity
And if this circle will ever end
