

Jack Savoretti

"Better Change"

Visit "Better Change" on MotoLyrics.com

If you think that I'm writing this song for the money
Try living a day in my shoes
You'll see what it means to be angry and lonely
With nothing but nothing to lose

'Cause I'd rather be here with a bottle of wine
Drinking and singing with old friends of mine
I don't care what it means
I don't know what it takes
But to win is the greatest mistake I could make

I don't recognize my face
I don't know my name
If I could do it I again I would do it the same
But I promise you this
One day the world will change
Better change
Better change
Better change
Better change

See I've crucified saviours
I've glorified traitors
I've followed these mad men to war
I have held a dictator
I'm a lover
I'm a hater
I am what I am
Nothing more

You won't recognize my face
You don't know my name
If I could do it I again I would do it the same
But I promise you this
One day the world will change
Better change
Better change
Better change
Better change

Out in the distance

Out of the blue
What will become of me and you

Legends are stories begging for truth
Made by the memories of me and you
Oh

At the end of an era
At the end of the day the ones I remember are those who were brave
And I know I'm a coward
'Cause I know I'm afraid of the ones that I love and the ones I betray

I don't recognize my face
I don't know my name
If I could do it I again I would do it the same
But I promise you this
One day I know I will change
I will change
I will change

I know I will change
Better change
Better change

Oh
I know I will change
Better change
Better change

Oh
I know I will change

Visit Jack Savoretti page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.