Hypocrite, don't you know what you do,
Their eyes watching your every move?
You know the truth, but you live a lie
And slither down from your altar high

You say one thing and you do another
You say one thing and you do another
You burn the fields and poison the waters
Say one thing and you do another
You say one thing and you do another

It's a dead man's charade, liven' brother,
Hypocrite,
Don't you know what you do?

You're way too old if you're calling for peace
You're diagnosing, and you're the disease
You betrayed words on the shepherd's soul
Scatter the flock to the rocks below

You say one thing and you do another
You say one thing and you do another
You burn the fields and poison the waters
Say one thing and you do another
You say one thing and you do another

Tell me whose roof you're living under,
Hypocrite,
Don't you know what you do?

Don't tell anyone else. You're one to hiss!
Don't tell anyone else. you're one to hiss!

You say one thing and you do another
You say one thing and you do another
You burn the fields and poison the waters
Say one thing and you do another
You say one thing and you do another

I can't believe what I see in the mirror.
