We've all got our burdens, our secrets and our shames

We've all been discouraged and watched love fall in flames

And when we hit the bottom of all we can bear

When we need you

You rise like the morning sun, a pillar in the night

You looked into the void and called it light

And you are faithfully provide for the trouble that we share

When we need you, you've always been there

Blessed are the poor all around the world

Your children living under war and oppression

'Cause you're the man of sorrows, they whisper up their prayers

When they need you

And you rise like the morning sun, a pillar in the night

You looked into the void and called it light

And you faithfully provided for the trouble that we share

When we need you, you've always been there

And how do we know in the dark of the night

To call out for You, Lord, to come with Your light?

We were born with you written on our hearts

And now we need you

And you rise like the morning sun, a pillar in the night

You looked into the void and called it light

And you faithfully provided for the trouble that we share

When we need you, you've always been there

When we need you, you've always been there
