So you're gone and but I know you're not so far away
You're a call on the phone or a ride on a plane
But that just isn't the same, yeah well

Well, that's okay [Incomprehensible] because I was never home anyway
So now everyone's evolving and I am just the same
As I was ten years ago, but I don't know
Maybe a simple life is more the way to go
Yeah, but then again I'm mostly all alone

'Cause I'm losing everyone
But I know I can't lose you, no
And maybe my time will come
But I know I can't lose you

'Cause the older I get
Well, the more that life is making sense
And it's similar to traffic or being president
'Cause I'm not the one in control 'cause you grab a hold
And I'm just a hammer helping to nail the future down
And but it's getting hard making my friends leave town

'Cause I'm losing everyone
But I know I can't lose you, no
And maybe my time will come
But I know I can't lose you

But maybe I missed the nose right on my face
For what's just past it
And maybe I have the gift that everyone speaks so high of
Funny how nobody wants it

'Cause I'm losing everyone
But I know I can't lose you, no
And maybe my time will come
But I know I can't lose you
Yes, I know I can't lose you, oh
