Hola, me llamo Efrain
I was born among the agave
All I need is this transistor radio
I am in a band, it's a family band
With the brothers in the years above me
And now we have a song that we'd like to play you

He sang, "Volcano
We're living in the shade of the volcano
The Volcano
We're living in the shade of the volcano"

A bumpy ride on the buss to the amber hill
I was feeling like a hundred pesos
But something in my soul was certainly there to stay
And nothing on the hill goes without
Their beloved mother's say-so
So everything is alright, everything is O.K.

She said, "Volcano
You're living in the shade of the volcano
The Volcano
El Señor es siempre bueno"

Home for me is beneath the pine trees
That grow to be about sixty feet tall
And on the back of the SUVs is a mustang sticker
And a feeling that never leaves you alone

Volcano
You're living in the shade of the volcano
The Volcano
You're living in the shade of the volcano
The Volcano
You're living in the shade of the volcano
The Volcano
El Señor es siempre bueno
