Goodbye, goodbye
You're looking in my eyes and still you don't know how to say my name
Goodbye, goodbye
Nothing has changed and still I know I'll never be the same

If God is watching us
Has he gone silent
Could we take what he would say?
Are we even listening at all?

Goodbye, goodbye
Another concrete jungle
Too many lions trying to survive
Goodbye, goodbye
We want it all but no one wants to have to pay the price

If God is watching us
shouldn't he be angry?
for blaming him and not ourselves
Are we even sorry?

Goodbye, goodbye
I guess we deserve the beds that we're all sleeping in tonight
Goodbye, goodbye
All these shades of grey, we've painted it all black instead of white

If God is watching us
Maybe he is praying
That we could see it thru his eyes and finally know what peace is (Do we care, do we really, really care, do we care)

I'll never be a perfect angel
I'll never know exactly what to say I'll never be God's purify

I'll fuck it up a thousand different ways
But I'm the bravest of the weak
And I'm your suicidal queen
I cheat, I love, I drink
But I'm the sweetest of the mean I wanna slash my wrists and watch them bleed, but I know God's watching

If God is watching us
Will he forgive me? And let me forgive myself?
Because maybe then I'd love "me"

Tell me what to do to finally feel good enough
I know you're watching
