I was listening to something that you gave me on the freeway just above the posted speed I was leaving town for good because I loved yo and the risks of love were just to much for me a song came on that I have never heard before it almost made me turn back towards your place but then I thought of all the ways you moved me it'd happed if your feelings ever changed I turned the music up until it hurt my ears and pushed the tears right back into my eyes I tried not to look up into the rear-view mirror at the life with you I had to leave behind
