Can't Make a Move (Lyrics by Kristen Henderson)

Looking right into me you speak of boundaries
while stealing the heart
from my chest

So it seems anywhere I stand becomes some sort of test;
if I don't play my scripted part you'll use those eyes to break my heart.

And if I speak too warm or real
I risk saying what you might feel.
It's almost as if I can't make a move

as long as I'm falling in love with you

So as long as I'm falling, I'll learn to stand still cold as a statue alone on a hill.

'Cause if I speak too warm or real
I risk saying what you might feel
It's almost as if I can't make a move as long as I'm falling, falling in love with you.
