Letters to my old apartment, Walks around the lake, Memories this smile so wide her eyes in... , See the change in mood a mile away when your smile fades, And now the unpredictable change of ways, Now we fade away, Today I see a different side to both of us that sees to, We both talk to us a lot of lies to see through, Proved a lot of people work, When they really just should not, And now there's nothing left to prove, All emotions left to rot, I got a letter to return to you, I'm done walking, Talking trust for both of us, Have left the ball droppin', I can't speak to you when you can't return the favor back, Turn your back and I'll make this little thing just fade to black.

I see you looking my way, you're so ashamed, I'm so ashamed, I Hope that you'll find a way, to make a change, it's not too late.

I used to know you better now we're drifting apart, What's a heart but just a really big muscle inside, Lets ride the feelin', We've been thinking from the beginning of you and me, So now the feelings not there for me to hide behind, Find the time for games and games to take up all your time, I'll read the lines but inbetween is where your truth lies, I can't compete with your ride, And your eyes connect with mine, We make mistakes, Your passing me by, I'm asking you why, Me or you, Who's to blame, Pointing fingers 'aint for life, Green lights and sleepless nights, Worn suits we've seen the highs, Figure make loser if it makes you fare the better, In the end I think well find we've changed up, just like the weather.

I see you looking my way, you're so ashamed, I'm so
ashamed, I Hope that you'll find a way, to make a change, it's not
too late.

You gotta get up, You gotta get up, Hell yeah, You gotta get up, Pick yourself up now, You gotta pick yourself up now, Come on, Breathe man, Breathe, You gotta get up, You gotta get up, Hell yeah, You gotta get up, Pick yourself up now.
